Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair
Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.
The best thing to use is just plain mulsified coconut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.
Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Adv.

Preach Gospel of Good Health With Films on Boston Common

City Uplift Organizations and State Officials Sponsor Exhibitions.

SHOW PICTURES IN PARKS

Audiences of Five Thousand
Frequently Attend These Open-Air Shows.

The use of films in carrying on an active campaign against infantile paralysis in New York city by the health authorities is not the first time such a thing has been done. In fact the use of films, outside of New York, is becoming rather common for such purposes. The film has been adopted as a matter of course for this purpose in some States.

The city authorities of Boston and the State of Massachusetts, together with the various charitable, uplift and scientific organizations of that section have worked out a regular scheme for employing films, especially in public health work.

In Boston pictures of this sort are being shown in public parks and at the principal places where people congregate out of doors in the summer evenings.

It is the second year of public pictures in the metropolitan parks. The demonstrations have been a success in their way, but they have also proved that to be a permanent success some new features must be introduced.

Want Producers to Help.
Already an appeal through the press has gone out for the professional motion picture producer to give his attention to the subject of the cut-of-door pictures and solve the problems which now confront the amateurs in this line.

The first criticism made of the cut-of-door pictures is the fact that the screens are too small and the pictures consequently too minute for an out-of-door gathering of 5,000 persons to view with good results. Something huge must be evolved to meet the requirements of the great assemblages in the public parks.

The first three demonstrations of the health films given at Franklin Field, Boston, drew crowds of over 5,000 each. Two and three night stands will be the rule in the various parks of the urban park system for the rest of the season.

Vitagraph's Woman Director.
Marguerite Bertsch, one of the best known scenario writers and one of the few women directors in the motion picture profession, has started producing her latest effort, which will be released as a Vitagraph-V. L. S. E. feature.

For several years Miss Bertsch was the editor-in-chief of Vitagraph's scenario department and it was then that she wrote a number of the successes produced by that company.

It is only during the last year that Miss Bertsch has undertaken the actual direction of her pictures, but her first effort was such a marked success that she will continue along the producing end, both directing and writing the pictures.

Some of Miss Bertsch's pictures are "For a Woman's Fair Name," "Salvation Joan," starring Edna May, and "The Law Decides."

Mary Pickford Talks Dutch.
Mary Pickford thought a course in real Holland Dutch would help her in the production of "Hulda From Holland," which Washington film patrons saw this week for the first time at Loew's Columbia. And so she started to study the language.

While the windmills, etc., of Holland are picturesque, Miss Pickford declares the language isn't.

But Miss Pickford progressed some in her studies. This was proved when some one asked her, at a private show of the film, how old the smallest boy was who appeared with her in the picture.

"Twice years old," declared the young star, mixing her Dutch and English unconsciously.

Elliott Dexter and Marie Doro, the newly weds of the Hollywood actors' colony, have installed themselves in a real California bungalow that is so pretty to look upon that it is being used for probably a dozen pictures by different companies.

WANT RED CROSS UNITS RESTORED

Allies Decline to Let Supplies
Into Germany Under Other Conditions.

Ambassador Page, at London, has been handed by the British government in behalf of the allies, a detailed summary of reasons why the requests of the American Government for permission to send Red Cross supplies into Germany must be denied.

The allies, according to the note, absolutely refuse to permit shipment of Red Cross supplies into the countries of the central powers, unless this country should restore the American Red Cross units which recently were withdrawn from Germany because of a lack of finances.

Without hospital units to supervise distribution of the supplies, it is stated, there can be no guarantee that supplies will not be put to military use.

The communication handed by the British foreign office to the American ambassador was made public late yesterday by the State Department.

In it the British government expressly stipulates that it does not consider that the Geneva convention applies, and asserts that the passage of such supplies as the Red Cross proposes to ship "has been forbidden in the case of every blockade established in the past."

THIS BRICKLAYER CURED BY DRECO

Mr. Charles Benner, of 3208
Philadelphia Avenue, Baltimore, Md., Tells His Own Experience in His Own Words.

"Yes, bricklaying is 'some' test for a man's back and general condition, and if there are any troubles this work is sure to bring them out."

"I suffered so with dragging pains in my back and burning sensation that it was almost impossible for me to get through my daily work, but not a single day when I went to the first one. Actually I was worse off—because they charged me money enough, even if they didn't do me any good."

"I've taken two bottles of Dreco—that's all—and now I'm singing another kind of song. I never have a pain in my back—the burning sensation is gone for good, I'm sure—and I can stand up to a full day of my kind of work with the rest of them—and that's surely making some headway, you can believe me."

"I'd known about Dreco about six months earlier I could have saved all the money I've spent for doctors, and I don't know how many hours of suffering and time lost on the job, which I had to quit and go home, because the pains were too severe for me to stay at work another minute."

Dreco, the root and herb medicine that did Mr. Benner so much good can be bought at any O'Donnell Drug Store; Allen's Drug Store in Alexandria, Va.; or at any drug store in Annapolis.—Adv.
